

California Stoppin

I've heard 'em called "California stops". Y'know, where you, like, approach a stop sign, slow down, and then just keep on going...having never really stopped. That's what happened to this guy. He ran a stop sign and <blam> he got totally clam-shelled by a car that had the right-of-way.

Dude, those eight-sided red signs mean STOP ... all the way ... even if you don't see any other baja bugs coming as you approach the intersection. Hang ten!